WEBINAR PRESENTER

Matthew J Kozak,
MS, MBA, MSL

Matthew, a third-generation Alaskan from Kodiak Island, has a Bachelor of Science in Psychology from Tulane University. He's worked in diverse fields, from tutoring in New Orleans to salmon fishing in Bristol Bay.

Currently, Matthew manages the Kodiak Area Native Association Prevention Department, concentrating on public health outreach.

His work continues to prioritize prevention, outreach, and behavioral health services for Alaska Native people in Kodiak.

Male-Experienced Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) & Associated Trauma

Learn how common male-experienced IPV and domestic violence is, consequences of the trauma, barriers that prevent men from getting help, and examine ways to support this population.

Webinar Objectives:

1. Increase knowledge about IPV experienced by men
2. Examine outcomes associated with IPV and trauma
3. Understand unique barriers encountered by men seeking help with IPV

This webinar is supported by the IHS Division of Behavioral Health, Behavioral Health Initiatives Branch efforts to provide current grantees with opportunities to share the important work being done throughout Indian Country.
